DYSPEPSIA.

IS that misery experienced when we suddenly become aware that we possess a diabolical arrangement called a stomach. The stomach is the reservoir from which every fibre and tissue must be nourished, and any trouble with it is soon felt throughout the whole system. Among a dozen dyspeptics no two will have the same predominant symptoms. Dyspeptics of active mental power and a bilious temperament are subject to Sick Headache; those, fleshy and phlegmatic in temperament, while the thin and nervous are abandoned to gloomy forebodings. Some dyspeptics are wonderfully forgetful; others have great irritability of temper.

Whatever form Dyspepsia may take, one thing is certain,

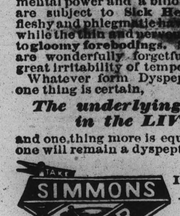
The underlying cause is in the LIVER, and one thing more is equally certain, no one will remain a dyspeptic who will



It will correct Acidity of the Stomach, Expel foul gases, Allay Irritation, Assist Digestion, and, at the same time

Start the Liver to working, when all other troubles soon disappear.

"My wife was a confirmed dyspeptic. Some three years ago by the advice of Dr. Steiner, of Augusta, she was induced to try Simmons Liver Regulator. I feel grateful for the relief it has given her, and may all who read this and are afflicted in any way, whether chronic or otherwise, use Simmons Liver Regulator and I feel confident health will be restored to all who will be advised."—WM. TO JESSIE'S DANCING FEET.

How, as the spider's web is spun
With subtle grace and art,
Do thy light footsteps, every one,
Cross and recross my heart!
Now here, now there, and to and fro
Their whirling mazes turn
Thy fairy feet so lightly go
They seem the earth to spurn;
Yet every step leaves there behind
A something when you dance,
That serves to tangle up my mind
And all my soul entrance.

How, as the web the spiders spin
And wanton breezes blow,
Thy soft and filmy laces in
A swirl around thee flow!
The cobweb 'neath thy chin that's crossed
Remains demurely put,
While those are ever whirled and tossed
That show thy saucy foot;
That show the silver grayness of
Thy stockings' silken sheen,
And mesh of snowy skirts above
The silver that is seen.

How, as the spider from his web
Dangles in light suspense,
Do thy sweet measures' flow and ebb
Sway my enraptured sense!
Thy flut'ring lace, thy dainty airs,
Thy every charming pose—
There are not more alluring snares
To bind me with than those.
Swing on! Sway on! With easy grace
Thy witching steps repeat!
The love I dare not—to thy face—
I offer at thy feet.
—W. D. Ellwanger in Century.

SUPERSTITION.

JUNE 8.

Late one evening Miss Genevieve Harrington, prima donna assoluta of the Cosmopolitan opera company, accompanied by a very proper and trim French maid, and a very improper and startling array of trunks, embarked upon the great steamship Westmoreland, outward bound.

Upon the same ship Mr. Henry Winthrop set foot some minutes later.

Everybody knew Mlle. Genevieve. Her wonderful voice and her pretty self had taken the operatic world by storm.

The very first sensation that Harry felt on awakening the following morning was one of much pain.

The upper deck was drenched with water. Blinding sheets of spray were sweeping over the rails and coursing in little streams around the bulkhead.

Harry drew his mackintosh tighter around him, and crouching down under a lifeboat proceeded to light a cigarette. Match after match sputtered and went out. At last, after numberless unsuccessful attempts, a light was obtained and Harry settled down for a comfortable smoke.

"Oh!"

Harry leaped to his feet. What was that? With the instinct of an old football player, he bent down and braced himself firmly against the davits.

A bundle of waterproofs dashed across the sloping deck with a rapidity that would have made a cannon ball ashamed of its slowness, and precipitated itself fairly in his arms.

Two hands clasped the sleeve of his mackintosh. He looked down at them. Very pretty hands they were, small and white.

He studied the bundle of waterproofs more carefully. Yes, without doubt, it was a woman. More than that fact he could not learn—she was laughing. A pair of dark eyes looked up at him, then the lids drooped demurely over them.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he heard the voice say, "I hope I have not quite killed you. If you will release me now, I think I can get safely back."

"Release you, madam?" said Harry in a melancholy tone. "Release you! No! You would be swept overboard, and I would never forgive myself. Cling to me, despite my years I am still strong, and I will rescue you."

"But I don't want to be rescued," persisted the voice. "Or, if you will, take my arm instead of my—my waist."

"Madam," said Harry, removing his cap with his unoccupied hand, "forgive me. In the confusion of the moment I only thought of stopping your mad rush to destruction. Had you gotten by me and reached the goal my reputation as full back would have been ruined."

A few minutes later they were seated on the lee side of the cabin out of the reach of the wind and spray.

"Pray let me introduce myself. I am Harry Winthrop," began that enterprising young person.

"And I am Genevieve Harrington. I've seen you before. One evening not long ago you sat in the right hand box of the Cosmopolitan."

Harry smiled benignly. "Yes, and last fall you sat on the tallyho I slid under when we lost the ball. Isn't it queer you noticed me, though, in the theater? Do you know what I was thinking of? I'd have given my head to have known that you knew I was there. Couldn't throw you any flowers, you know, because I didn't have any money to get them with. Never do have much."

"Yes," said Genevieve dreamily, "I knew you were there. I'll never forget how afraid I was when you threw yourself under the frightened horses just to get that miserable football. I was happy, too, afterward when you won the game by your long run. My! How they did cheer, didn't they?"

"Lunch is served for the first table," shouted the deck steward, thrusting his head out of the cabin door.

Harry jumped to his feet. "Will you let me take you down, Miss Harrington? I'm awfully afraid I have been boring you to death, but when I get started—won't you pledge friendship with me in a little champagne?" he said earnestly. "I'd like to be your friend."

"But I never drink anything at all."

"Neither do I," laughed Harry. "Let's shake hands anyway." Genevieve laid her hand in his, and the impulsive young couple went down to dinner.

As Harry said long afterward, "that dinner settled it." A few miserable faced people were at the tables, every now and then a person would enter the saloon with the grim determination to get through that meal or die.

But they did neither. Nature would mercilessly assert its sway, and they would slink hastily back to their staterooms. Looks of hatred were cast at the laughing trio at the captain's table. But they were not heeded.

The captain spun out long sea yarns to his heart's content. Genevieve poured out the captain's tea and Harry put in his time by being ridiculously happy.

JUNE 14. 1:37 P. M., ET SEQUITUR.

Harry looked on moodily. Miss Harrington was lying lazily back in her chair, shading herself from the rays of the hot sun with a dainty parasol.

She was literally surrounded by young men of all kinds and ages, but all of them in the same condition of servitude. One of them was occupied in violently fanning her. Another was so much afraid she would catch cold that he covered her carefully over with a great steamer rug.

Unembarrassed by these many attentions, Genevieve was looking at the tall figure of Winthrop as he leaned against the cabin some distance away from the group, and eyed her many admirers with a disdainful shrug of the shoulders.

"You called me, Miss Harrington?"

"Yes. Come over and talk to me. I want your advice. Mr. Thorndyke was just saying that he thought my parasol was a decided red. Do you think it is?"

Mr. Thorndyke's face contracted with such a sudden look of surprise that his eyeglass fell into his lap. "But, my dear Miss Harrington, I never said anything of the sort; I assure you I was thinking" —

"It is too late to retract now," retorted Genevieve saucily. "If you didn't say it, you were going to. Now, I don't think it's a bit gaudy."

The look on Harry's face at that moment was more grave than even the Sphynx could boast of. "That's what the monkey remarked when he painted his tail blue," he ventured politely. "Not a bit gaudy."

He examined the offending parasol with a critical eye. "No, not a bit gaudy. It only needs a touch or two of veronese green to make it absolutely quiet."

"Awful boor, that man, isn't he?" whispered Mr. Thorndyke confidentially.

Genevieve looked at him calmly.

"Do you think so? You don't need to fan me any more. I'm nearly frozen to death, and I can't bear this great thick rug over me. I'm too warm now; and if you ever say such a thing again I'll—I'll box your ears. Give me your arm, Mr. Winthrop, I want to walk."

A disconsolate group of men watched her in surprised silence as she rose, took Harry's arm and moved proudly away.

"What an air she has!" exclaimed one of them admiringly.

"Yes," assented the collapsed Mr. Thorndyke sadly, "but it is air in motion; violent motion too. Regular whirlwind, I say." The group adjourned to the smoking room.

Genevieve turned suddenly to Harry. "What made you say such bad things to me?" she asked reproachfully.

They walked on a minute in silence.

"Because," said Harry, "I'm a fool. Genevieve—Miss Harrington—no, I'm going to call you Genevieve. You'll laugh at me, I know. I'm awfully young, disgracefully young, in fact. I don't know very much, I suppose, and I haven't any money, and I can't do anything; but—but I'm terribly in love with you. And I suppose I'll grow older some day, and I'll work until I'm rich"——

"I don't want you to be rich, Harry. I wouldn't like you half so well that way."

"And I don't want you to like me," retorted this straightforward young man; "I want you to love me. Do you?"

Genevieve rested her pretty head on one side. "Sometimes I almost think I do," she answered softly. "Oh, Harry, how could you? There's that awful Mr. Thorndyke looking right at us, and I know he saw you."

"Saw me kiss you? Oh, you may as well say it. You don't care, do you? I'll kill him if you want me to. Say, Genevieve, I think you're awfully pretty."

"So do I," replied Miss Harrington. She looked uncertainly at her somewhat impetuous admirer. Her lips were smiling tremulously, but there shone a grave light in her eyes.

"Harry," she said suddenly, "I'm going to run away now. Come to me this evening—I've a long story to tell you," and before he could remonstrate she had slipped away.

JUNE 17. EVENING.

"Can I light a cigarette, Genevieve? I'm prosaic, I know, but you see I was so happy I just forgot what I was doing, and I ate a terribly big dinner, and I'm afraid"— Harry looked questioningly through the dim light at his companion.

"Isn't this jolly?" he continued, after a minute. "All alone by ourselves, and the propeller going kerthump, kerthump, down below us. Just look at the path the ship makes. It almost seems as if you could walk right out there and come to the end of the world.

"But I forgot, you're going to tell me a story, ain't you? Do you know I could sit and listen to that voice of yours forever? Well?"

"Once on a time, in the old days of witchcraft, there lived in a cabin down by the sea an old woman and her son, a fisherman, and her little daughter.

"Up on the top of a high cliff, not far away, stood the thriving village of B——. In that village dwelt an old man, honest and cruel, feared by all, loved by none. He was called Judge Winthrop.

"Now the young fisherman was brought into court for committing some petty crime; and the judge condemned him to death. Long did the mother plead, but all in vain, for the judge abided by his decision and would not yield.

"Then in her anger and grief she cursed him. The judge laughed at her, for he was never superstitious. But one day, long afterward, his son received a slight scratch on the arm, and the blood came forth from it in little red streams that nothing could stop. In a few hours he was dead. He had—had bled to death.

"Years passed away and generations succeeded each other; every male descendant of the fated house met with a like death.

"Harry, I—yes, I—Genevieve, the woman that you say you love, am descended from the woman who cursed"—

"My family?" Harry had risen to his feet and was leaning against the balustrade. "My father died when I was very young. I can't remember him, and yet I have heard of the old tradition. Bosh. There can't be any truth in a thing like that. Why, I'll prove it. Look"——

He thrust his hand in his pocket and drew out a knife— "I'll just jab myself in the arm a little and see"——

"Don't," cried Genevieve. "Oh, Harry, you will"— The blood spurted from Winthrop's wrist.

"There," he said calmly throwing his cigarette over the stern of the ship, "we'll find out in a few minutes anyway. Do you know"——

"I know that you are breaking my heart," sobbed Genevieve as she endeavored to cover the injured wrist with her two hands.

"Oh, I say, that isn't fair," remonstrated Harry, pushing her away from him gently. "Let it bleed awhile."

Genevieve knelt down beside him. "Harry, dear Harry, let me bind it up."

She struggled with his arm; she might as well have tried to move a rock. A sense of helplessness came over her, she buried her face in her hands—and waited. The ship gave a sudden plunge, she lost her balance and fell forward, her head struck heavily against the railing.

Genevieve opened her eyes slowly and looked up. Harry's anxious face was bending over her.

"Where am I?" she murmured drowsily. "How my head pains. Why, how do you"— She started up with a sudden cry. "Is it bleeding, Harry?"

"Bless me, I had forgotten all about it," he answered. "Why, no; it's stopped."—Boston Globe

Experiment Stations.

The first agricultural experiment station in this country was established by Connecticut in 1875. The example was soon followed elsewhere. The appropriation by congress of $15,000 per annum to each of the states and territories which have established agricultural colleges or agricultural departments of colleges has led to the establishment of new stations or the increased development of stations previously established under state authority, until there are now agricultural experiment stations in operation in all the states and territories except Montana and Idaho. During the year new stations have been established in Wyoming, Oklahoma and Washington. Of the fifty-five stations in the United States, fifty receive their support wholly or in part from the United States treasury. The results and processes of their experiments are given to the public not only in the station bulletins and reports, but also in thousands of newspapers and other periodicals.

A Dog's Memory.

The following, remarkable at all events as a feat of memory, was told by the owner of an Irish water spaniel. His master was out walking with him at the beginning of the long frost in 1885, which set in about the middle of January. He went on a frozen milldam, where of course the water was very deep, and accidentally dropped his snuffbox through a little round hole in the ice. The dog was dreadfully distressed at not being able to get it, but was obliged to go home with its owner, who thought no more about the matter. Two months afterward, when the frost had gone, he and the dog passed by the same place. The dog paused opposite the spot where the box had disappeared, seemed to think intently for a minute, then plunged in, dived to the bottom and returned with the snuffbox in his mouth.—London Tit-Bits.

Why Ain't It?

"Children ask a great many more questions than we can answer," remarked the school teacher the other evening. "There's a boy, for instance, in my school to whom I have been trying to teach the alphabet, but he is very slow to learn. The other day when I had him up he persisted in calling F S, and at last, provoked by his stupidity, I said to him, 'Now, you've called F S a half dozen times, and I don't want you to do it again. F isn't S, never was and never will be.'

"'Why ain't it?' he asked innocently, and to this day I am unable to answer that question entirely to my own satisfaction, and certainly not to the boy's."—Detroit Free Press.

Profitable Training.

There is a farmer who lives in Kansas who has learned a thing or two and makes a practical use of his knowledge. He owns a farm between the tracks of the Santa Fe and Central Branch railroads at the point where they diverge, about three miles outside of Atchison. The farmer also owns a dog which he has trained to run out and bark at passing trains. The trainmen look for the dog regularly and hurl coal at him. The farmer then goes out and gathers up the coal. He has not bought any fuel for a long time.—Chicago Mail.

Few Gold Coin Counterfeits.

Nearly all the counterfeit coins afloat are silver pieces. As the whole process of making gold coins is more expensive than making silver ones, so it is more expensive to counterfeit gold than silver coins. There are always a good many counterfeit silver dollars floating about, although during the last few years there has been no perceptible increase of them. There are comparatively few spurious gold pieces out.—Interview in New York Epoch.

Poor and Worthy.

"Rastus, do you know of any poor and worthy woman to whom I can send a turkey?"

"Yath, Mars' George."

"Who is she?"

A PERTINENT REPLY.

State Analysit, Prof. Rising, Restates Some Baking Powder Facts.

A mean action generally recoils upon its author. Recently a a baking powder concern has been attempting by publication of cooked-up interviews and blackguard advertisements, to injure the reputation of the baking powder best known and most used in this community. This has brought out a letter from Prof. Rising, of the California State University and Analyst to the State Board of Health, in which he says:

"I wrote the report of the Committee of the Mechanics Fair on baking powders two years ago, awarding the medal to the Royal Baking Powder Company for the purity and care in the preparation of their baking powder. This report was made out after careful chemical analysis on my part and expressed my views at the time, and I have no occasion to change my opinion of the merits of the Royal Baking Powder, and are satisfied that it fulfills all the requirements which the public can make of a baking powder. For purity and care in preparation it equals any in the market, and our test shows that it has a greater leavening power than any other of which we have any knowledge.

The manufacturers of these new and low grade baking powders will probably not again attempt to use the name of Prof. Rising in their efforts to delude the public.

Official World's Fair Guide.

It affords us pleasure to announce that the Official Guide to the World's Columbian Exposition and the great city of Chicago is now ready in elegant book form and of nearly 400 pages, richly embellished with superb illustrations of the highest order. The aid of the best photographers and engravers has been invoked that the beautiful and picturesque features of the great Exposition and points of interest throughout the city of Chicago be clearly presented.

The guide does not only describe to the minutest detail everything of inestimable value pertaining to the exposition of Chicago, but has a full page picture of each of the mammoth exhibit buildings in oil colors. Also many others, illustrating artistically the useful, the curious and the beautiful that will be there in magnificent display.

It caps the climax with a magnificent cyclorama view, "Bird's eye View of the Exposition Grounds and Buildings," beautifully lithographed in eight oil colors, size 9x18 inches.

It is a book for the millions who contemplate visiting Chicago in 1893. It will be purchased by millions who cannot go, but will desire to know just what their friends are seeing. In fact, every loyal American citizen should possess a copy of this great work. The well-known Pacific Publishing Co., San Francisco, Cal., are the sole State agents, and they want agents to sell the book in every town. Full particulars and terms will be sent on application. Read their advertisement in another column.

Simmons Liver Regulator, bear in mind, is not an experiment. It is endorsed by thousands.

You cannot feel well without a clear head, and for this take Simmons Liver Regulator.

Feeding the Crowd at the World's Fair.

The visitors to the exposition will be fed. The study of how and where to feed the crowds at the big fair has been an incident of the work of the construction department for the past six weeks, and is as complete as possible. Food will be served in ten of the principal buildings in restaurants, private dining rooms and over lunch counters. There will be three characteristic lunch counters, twenty-seven principal restaurants or cafes, and in connection with them 115 dining rooms.

The supplies will issue from seventeen complete hotel kitchens, manned by an army of more than 1,000 waiters, cooks and scullions. The dining room will occupy above five acres of space, and it will be possible for above 3,000 people to sit at table at one time.—Chicago Woman's News.

Card of Thanks.

We desire through the columns of the Sonoma INDEX TRIBUNE to express our deep appreciation of the great attention and help bestowed by all the Glen Ellen community in our sudden affliction by the loss of our mother. Also to the ladies of the Eastern Star Lodge, who hastened at first notice to tender their warm sympathy and aid in our bereavement.

MRS. GRAHAM'S

CUCUMBER and ELDER FLOWER CREAM.

Is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beautifies. It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind, and prevents sun burns and freckles, and blackheads will not come while you use it It cleanses the face far better than soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of the skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali, and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00, at all druggists and hair-dressers, or at Mrs. Gervaise Graham's establishment, 108 Post Street San Francisco, where she treates ladies for all blemishes on the face and figure. Ladies at a distance treated by letter. Send stamp for her little book "How to be Beautiful."

A good chance is offered in these columns this week for a blacksmith in search of a good business location. Mrs. T. J. Sullivan of Glen Ellen offers the business of her late husband and a completely stocked blacksmith shop and a seven-room cottage furnished for the sum of $1200. This is a bargain in every sense of the word.

Hermann Poppe, representing Charles Poppe, the oldest cigar dealer on the coast, was in town several days this week. The imported and domestic cigars handled by Mr. Poppe are very popular among Sonoma Valley smokers. When you call for a cigar ask for one of the Charles Poppe brand. See advertisement in another column.

T. A. Nufer V. S., who has rented the old Union Stables, is now ready to break and train horses. Also, horses trained to drive without reins and to do other gentle performances. Horses with bad habits promptly cured. Many farmers and others have fine horses which on account of bad habits are rendered worthless. Have them cured. Charges reasonable. For further particulars call at Union Hotel or at old Union Stables.

A heavy north wind storm prevailed throughout the valley last Sunday night and Monday morning. At times it blew a perfect hurricane. Fences and trees were prostrated and the roads which had been very muddy the past few weeks were completely dried up and rendered in fine condition for traveling. The wind did more good than harm, for in addition to improving the roads it has enabled our farmers to commence plowing, which has been suspended owing to the soaking the ground received the fore part of the month.

Last Monday afternoon a most disgraceful case of cruelty to animals was observed on one of the principal thoroughfares of the town. A woman driving a poor old bony half-starved horse came tearing up Napa street and every now and then she would belabor the poor brute with a piece of scantling about six feet long and three inches thick. When near the Catholic Church blow after blow was rained upon the skinny animal, which was already travelling at a far better gait than many a younger and better fed horse would be capable of maintaining. Such acts of brutality ought not to be allowed in civilized communities. If there is a repetition of the offense an arrest is sure to follow.

DEADLY ASSAULT.

W. B. Pless Savagely Attacked.

J. B. Stout of Tubbs' Island, the Assailant.

W. B. Pless of the dredger Nevada, who is a partner of Senator Jones in his dredger enterprise, was savagely assaulted in Clewe's store last Thursday morning by J. B. Stout, the foreman of Tubb's Island Farm. The weapon used was a hose coupling attached to about four feet of heavy wine hose. Mr Pless was struck twice, one blow on the head producing an ugly scalp wound on the left side of the same from which the blood flowed copiously. His hat, a thick derby, prevented him from receiving a wound which might have resulted seriously. As it was he was completely dazed by the blow, which was dealt without the least warning, so Mr. Pless claims.

Stout was arrested later on by Officer Jas. Albertson and taken before Judge Cheney, who put him under bonds to appear before him to answer to the charge of an assault with a deadly weapon to inflict bodily injury.

The preliminary examination of the accused has been set by Judge Cheney for next Saturday.

The causes which led up to the difficulty dates back some two years ago, when Mr. Pless with his associates, Senator John P. Jones, Sam Jones, Evan Williams and others, commenced dredging and reclamation operations in Sonoma creek and the meadow lands through which it winds its sinuous way to the shores of San Pablo Bay. In this private reclamation project, which is one of the greatest enterprises ever inaugurated in this valley, and which is giving employment to many of the young men of Sonoma Valley, Mr. Pless and Senator Jones have become, to say the least, public benefactors. They are using their own funds to defray all expenses and have no shares for sale in their enterprise, which is strictly a private one, although of great public benefit.

Ever since Mr. Pless came to this valley Stout has been envious of this reclamation project, and has even went so far as to endeavor to get the Sonoma and Petaluma papers to publish articles reflecting on the system of reclaiming lands introduced in this valley by Mr. Pless and his partners. In this and other ways he has harassed Mr. Pless.

Recently a flood gate belonging to Mr. Pless and Senator Jones was swept down Sonoma creek by the late freshet. It floated opposite Tubbs' Island and was secured by Stout who tied it to the bank of the stream and then sent word to Mr. Pless that if he wanted the same to send him $10 and come and get it. This he refused to do.

Thursday morning the parties met in Clewe's store and after a few angry words Stout attacked Pless as narrated above.

This is the first time in his life that Mr. Pless has been assaulted. He is an amiable and pleasant gentleman, and for the life of us we cannot see how any man, no matter how vicious, could raise his hand to do him bodily harm.

It may have been that the persecution of Stout led the injured man to use harsh words to the accused, but the day has passed when a man is justified in attempting to brain another on so slight a provocation.

Mr. Pless is being congratulated by his many friends all over the State on his escape from serious injury.

Manfridini vs. Quartaroli.

The civil suit of Manfridini vs. Quartaroli to recover the sum of $299 99 occupied the attention of Judge Cheney and a jury on Friday and Saturday of last week. The plaintiff was represented by attorney Rodgers of Petaluma, while Lawyer Harrison of this place ably managed the case of defendant. It appears that Manfridini, who owed Quartaroli on book account several hundred dollars, transferred all his property several months ago to his wife. Before doing this he sold out his store interests in this place to Quartaroli for $840, receiving $540 dollars in cash and a note for the balance, which he very adroitly had made out in his wife's name. The note falling due it was presented to Quartaroli for payment. He was willing to pay the differences between the face value of the note and the amount which Manfridini owed him which was $12. Manfridini refused to do this, claiming that the note was the property of his wife, and entered suit to recover the sum of $299 99. The jury after listening to the evidence of witnesses and the argument of counsel rendered a verdict in favor of Manfridini for $191. 99, being $100 less than he sued for. The verdict under the circumstances is claimed by defendant as a victory for him.

THEY BACK-SLIDED.

The Supervisors Rescend the $10,000 Map Business.

COMPELLED TO INVITE BIDS.

A Scheme that Miscarried Owing to a General Kick of Taxpayers.

The people of Sonoma county were not born yesterday, and no one knows it better now than the Supervisors.

About one of the worst breaks ever made by the Board of Supervisors of this county was the voting of $10,000 to J. W. Ragsdale for a map of Sonoma County on Wednesday of last week.

No competition was allowed, Mr. Cady, the Supervisor from Sonoma, who introduced the ill-timed resolution, giving as a reason that Mr. Ragsdale was the only man in the State who could do the work.

This was a very lame excuse for preventing honest competition. The fact of the matter is there are dozens of draughtsmen and civil engineers in this county who are competent to make a map of the same and would be only too glad to get a great deal less for their work, and if Mr. Ragsdale had been allowed to furnish the map, being neither a civil engineer or draughtsman, he would have been compelled to employ one of these men to make the map. This goes to show that the reasons for giving the work out without inviting bids was very gauzy to say the least.

When the action of the Board in this matter became known outside the Court House the act was so severely censured by the people that they were compelled to backslide, which was done by passing the following motion introduced by Supervisor Sales on the Friday following the passage of the obnoxious order:

"In the matter of the order passed by this Board on January 13th, 1892, authorizing the chairman to enter into a contract with J.W. Ragsdale to furnish a complete map of Sonoma County including township sheets for the County Assessor. It now appearing, after receiving advice from the District Attorney, that any contract made under and according to the proposition or argument submitted, would be irregular as to the time of payment, I therefore move that said order or resolution of this Board of date January 13th, 1892, be and the same is hereby rescinded."

BIDS INVITED.

On Tuesday the map business was again brought up before the Board by Supervisor Cady making the following motion which was adopted: The chairman having appointed a committee to draw up a set of specifications for a county map and map sheets, upon which all parties so desiring may have the opportunity of submitting their bids, and said specifications having been read by the clerk, I move that the same be adopted, and that it be made the order of the Board that the Clerk be and hereby is instructed to advertise for bids for said work in accordance with the specifications herewith submitted, each bid to be accompanied by a certified check for ten per cent of the amount of the bid, said check to be made payable to L. W. Juilliard, County Cleak, and to be forfeited to the counto in case the successful bidder shall fail to enter into a contract for same within five days of the time of opening said bid; bids to be received up to 4 P. M., February 2d, 1892, the Board reserving the right to reject any and all bids.

The Receiving Vault.

The sub committee of three of the Sonoma Valley Exhibit Committee, selected at a recent meeting to select a site and let the contract for a receiving vault in Mountain cemetery consisting of Capt. H. E. Boyes, T. D. Morris and H. H. Granice, met the Cemetery Committee of the City Trustees, Messrs. Weyl and Litzius last Saturday afternoon for the purpose of selecting a site for a vault. After looking the ground over it was unanimously agreed to erect the vault near the Haubert and Ehrlich plots. This site will make the vault easy of access and will give it one of the most commanding positions in our public cemetery. When the vault is completed it will be turned over to the city for the use of the people of town and valley.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to clense the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

A CARD FROM MRS. SNYDER.

ED. INDEX-TRIBUNE:

In the issue of your paper dated January 16th, 1892, you publish an article headed "Snyder and Sears Lawsuit," which contained statements which in justice to myself I desire you to correct by publishing the following.

In the first place I have been willing for months to do exactly what was done at the settlement, and had prepared and signed an agreement to that effect without any effort on the part of Mr. J. P. Rodgers.

In the second place, the princely domain of 800 acres, to which you refer, really consists of some 600 or 700 acres my father bought about 40 years ago, the whole of which he owned until the year 1879, at which time he gave by deed 320 acres to Perry Sears, this being the only part of the land in which the latter had any right, title or legal interest. My father kept the remaining portion of the ranch, which he deeded to me in 1889

For the land that Perry Sears did own, the above mentioned 320 acres, I have paid over twenty-eight thousand dollars. Before the suit of Snyder versus Sears, to which your article refers, was commenced, there were judgments and mortgages held by other parties against Perry Sears, which were a lien upon this land to the amount of over $20,000 (twenty thousand dollars), all of which I have paid besides the $8,000 I gave him at the time of settlement.

You may see if you will take the pains to examine the Records of Sonoma county, that I have held a Sheriff's deed to this 320 acres for over a year, and in July 1891, the suit you refer to was brought simply to recover possession of this tract of land, and was not the outcome of a family feud.

RACHEL J. SNYDER.
Sonoma, January 20, 1892.

Runaway.

A lively runaway took place last Thursday afternoon. A spirited horse attached to a go cart belonging to J. Chauvet of Glen Ellen broke away from one of Mr. Chauvet's sons while he was watering the animal and ran down First-street East until Grothaus' corner was reached when the wheels of the vehicle collided with the curbing and brought the animal to a standstill. The horse then commenced hicking and did not stop until he had kicked himself loose from the cart, after which he ran a block or two before he was secured. The cart was but slightly damaged.

Frightful Shipwreck.

Staunch ships strike and founder, the fierce winds and mountainous waves sweep noble mariners, "hearts of oak," to shipwreck and to death, yet that does not prevent the lubberliest landsman from risking his life on the stormy Atlantic in the role of tourist or commercial traveler. But if he shall reach his destination safely he will scarcely have escaped some of the qualms of sea sickness unless he takes with him Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, that inimitable specific for nausea. Bad water on long trips is a threat to the voyager, but this may be deprived in a great measure of its disordering effects upon the stomach, bowels and liver by the Bitters. Against the prejudicial effects of malaria, bad diet, fatigue and exposure it is efficacious. It averts, moreover, rheumatism and kidney complaints. Don't travel on sea or land without it."

H. Weyl went to Santa Rosa on a business visit last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Manuel visited San Francisco last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Wilson of Glen Ellen are both down with the grip.

Mrs. D. Dubring, formerly of this city, who has been lying very ill at her San Francisco residence, is convalescent.

Wm. P. Hill, Chas. McHarvey, B. Spencer and Geo. Hooper were Sonoma's visitors at the County Seat Wednesday.

Martin Peter of Glen Ellen was in town last Wednesday in search of a physician, his entire family being down with the grip.

L. R. Murphy of San Francisco, after a brief sojourn with his friend, A. Harrison of the Mervyn Hotel, Glen Ellen, has returned to his home in the Bay City.

Mrs. Kate F. Warfield is lying very near death's door with inflamation of the lungs at her Ten Oaks home near Glen Ellen. Dr. Vance of this place and Dr. Smith of Santa Rosa are in attendance.

Hon. J. K. Luttrell of Glen Ellen visited Santa Rosa last Saturday and took occasion while in town to appear before the Supervisors and urge their attendance at the Miners Convention in San Francisco, which was held in that city Wednesday.

Rev. David H. Reid left the early part of this week for New Westminster, British Columbia, where he will temporarily fill the pulpit of his father, Rev. Dr. Reid, a well-known divine of that city, who has been very ill the past seven weeks and is still unable to perform his duties as pastor.

W. H Dobyns of Santa Rosa, special United States Guager, paid this office a friendly visit one day last week. Mr. Dobyns has been kept busy the past six months at the Kohler & Frohling distillery and wine cellar. He is an old newspaper man, having been connected for a number of years with the Republican of Santa Rosa as well as with other papers.

Clark P. Streator of Washington, D. C., is a guest at the Mervyn Hotel, Glen Ellen. The gentleman is engaged in making a collection of Sonoma Valley mammals for the Smithsonian Institute, with which he is connected. He reports having secured in the vicinity of Glen Ellen the rarest collection made in any section during his travels through out the United States and the West Indies.

Mr. Clement J. Schuster has been in Nevada City the past week attending to his mining interests in that section of the State. New machinery is being erected and in the early spring operations of crushing ore will be resumed While on his way to Nevada county Mr. Schuster tarried for a short time at Auburn, Placer county, to take in the Citrus Fair at that place. Sonoma county, he reports, makes a very creditable showing among the other counties of Northern and Central California.

The newly installed officers of Glen Ellen Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, are as follows: C. H. Bruning, Master; J. V. Miner, O.; Mrs John Hendley, L; John Hendley, S; W. I. Williams, A. S; Mrs. J. M. Zane, C.; Robt. P. Hill, Secretary; Martin Peter, G. K.; Mrs. W. I. Williams, Ceres; Mrs. J. V. Miner, P.; Miss G Williams F.; Miss Minnie Bruning, L. A. S. The next meeting of the Grange takes place this evening.

The wedding of Miss Mollie Robin and Mr. Charles E. French was quietly but pleasantly celebrated at the home of the bride's mother, 27 Oak Grove avenue, San Francisco, Thursday evening.

The residence was beautifully decorated in honor of the wedding; the attractive effects were produced throughout by ferns and smilax, which were intermingled with potted plants and palms. The rooms were canvased and, in fact, every preparation had been made for the occasion.

Fifty invitations were issued and the guests were assembled in the parlors at 8 o'clock, when the wedding-march was played and the bridal party appeared. The bride was escorted by her brother, Mr. Adolph Robin. The bridegroom escorted Miss Cesarine Robin, who attended her sister as bridesmaid. The bride's mother was escorted by Mr. Eugene Robin of this place who gave the bride away.

The bride's toilet was of white satin and the front of heavy brocade; confined to her coiffure by a coronet of orange blossoms was a veil of white-silk moliene, which completely enveloped her figure, extending to the end of her train and was caught by an elegant diamond pin, the gift of the groom.

After the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Dr. Githens, congratulations were extended to the young couple and later an elaborate supper was served and toasts were given and responded to, after which dancing was indulged in The presents were numerous and costly, consisting of silver, china and glassware, bric-a-brac and many useful articles. The groom's gift to the bride was an elegant furnished house.

Mr. and Mrs. French are stopping at the Lick House and intend to leave in a few days for an extended trip through Southern California.

The Miner's Convention.

Hon. Robt. Howe, Ex-Congressman Luttrell and Capt. H. E. Boyes of this valley represented the Sonoma district in the recent Miners Convention in San Francisco. Messrs. Luttrell and Howe were both assigned important positions, the former on the Memorial and the latter on the Credential Committee. Mr. Luttrell made one of the most eloquent and masterly speeches delivered before the convention. It is to be hoped that the object of the convention will be carried out, that is to say a revival of the mining industries of this State.

The case of the People vs. G. C. P. Sears, who killed John Riebli in self-defense as decided by a Coroner's Jury and also a recent Grand Jury, will be called in the Superior Court at Santa Rosa next Monday. The trial is a mere formality, as the committing magistrate, Judge Brown of Santa Rosa, expressed the opinion when he held the accused to appear in the higher court that no jury would convict him.

Mr. J. Chauvet has introduced water power into his immense wine cellar near Glen Ellen, which is being utilized at the present time in racking off wine. By this process time and money is saved over the usual method employed in our wine-cellars in racking off wine by the hand process.

The most of our ailments come from disordered livers which Simmons Liver Regulator cures.

A CURIOUS OLD LABOR SYSTEM

In Pomerania Employers Have to Bid Against Each Other for Laborers.

The British consul at Stettin, in the course of a very interesting report on Pomerania generally, describes an Old World system of labor still to some extent prevailing there. There are two classes of laborers—the permanent (or Instleute) and the free laborers. The former, for the most part, are those who, having been born on the estate, remain on it all their lives, their contract with their employer being, however, renewable from year to year. Each family receives a free dwelling, consisting of two rooms, a kitchen, a loft and a cellar, also outhouses for pigs, goats, poultry, etc.

In land they receive 1,020 square yards for a garden, 2,550 square yards for potato and rye growing, 24 shillings yearly for firing and free carriage of fuel. In wages a healthy man receives 1s. 3d. daily from April 1 to Sept. 30, and 1 shilling daily from Oct. 1 to March 31. Each family is obliged to provide one "Hofganger," either boy or girl, to assist in work on the estate. They receive from their employer as wages from 3 pence to 7 pence per day, according to age.

The wife is not obliged to work in the fields, but she is expected to milk the cows, for which she receives from one to two quarts of milk per day. If she does work on the estate she receives 1 shilling per day from May 1 to Nov. 30, and is generally paid according to her value as a worker. The Instleute have opportunities of increasing their yearly wages by taking job work.

For example, in spring there is hoe work, in the summer harvesting and mowing, and in autumn gathering roots and fruit. For job work a man can sometimes earn as much as 3 shillings to 4 shillings extra per day: the wife and "hofganger" together, from 2 shillings to 3 shillings extra, or they may be paid in kind, as in wheat, hay, etc.

Should a family bring more laborers, these are paid and treated as free laborers. This system now only remains on a few of the larger estates. Free laborers are those who do not live on or belong to an estate and are under no obligations whatever to the estate holders. Their engagement during busy times is occasionally subject to keen competition between the various employers, and it is both interesting and amusing to see the agents (the wages on the various estates are often announced by the police officer stationed in the village) of various estate holders ringing their bells in the principal street of a village and declaring that they will give so much a day, and opposition agents overbidding each other, the laborers calmly awaiting results. But railway communication so rapidly extending, laborers from the south are able to finish work at the earlier crops in their own districts and yet be in ample time for the later harvesting in the north.

Thus the local laborer is now becoming of less value and this has had a tendency to lower wages to such an extent during winter and spring months that the village laborer is constantly seeking employment in the towns. Indeed, so difficult has it become to obtain laborers at harvesting times that some of the estate holders engage railway wagons to bring laborers from distant parts. These gangs of men and women are generally led by a head worker or "vorarbeiter," who receives the orders and the wages for the whole of his or her gang.

They are usually employed by the job. For weeding and potato gathering women are alone needed, and therefore gangs of women are often engaged separately. During the potato gathering season the little town of Kallies, in Pomerania, which is estimated to contain from three thousand to four thousand inhabitants, and where the people are celebrated as potato workers, is completely deserted, only the mayor and bellringer being left in the town. The people, who are all of the laboring class, go out to the harvest and potato gathering and are scattered all over Pomerania, leaving their houses locked and the keys in the hands of the mayor, as they often do not return for months.—London Times.

Lost His Aching Tooth.

David Randabaugh, who is reputed to be a veracious and prominent citizen of Mechanicsburg, O., relates a strange tale of personal experience. He says that the other night he went to bed with a raging toothache, and on waking in the morning he was startled to find his pillow and shirt bosom covered with blood and the offending tooth lying upon the bed clothing close by. He declares he had suffered no pain sufficient to awaken him during the night, and how the tooth became detached from his jaw remains a mystery. — Philadelphia Ledger.

To Toughen Glassware.

A simple method of toughening any glassware is to immerse it in a gallon pot of cold water in which a half cup of salt has been dissolved. Let the water boil thoroughly, then lift the kettle off the fire and allow it to become perfectly cold before you remove the glass. When the water is perfectly cold take out the glassware, wash it and wipe it dry. Glass treated in this way is protected against changes of temperature and sudden drafts, which, striking against a superheated lamp chimney, are liable to crack it.—New York Tribune.

And So Little After All.

A certain clergyman of Halifax, N. S., while addressing his congregation on the subject of the Prodigal Son, is said to have affected his hearers even more than he anticipated when, with tears in his eyes and pathos in his voice, he pictured the aged father, overjoyed at the return of his long lost boy, commanding them to bring forth and kill the little calf which had been fattening for years and years and years.—Harper's Bazar.

How One Man Speaks of His Child.

A baby is the member of the family that always cries when wanted to sleep, that always sleeps when wanted to keep awake, and invariably sulks when wanted to show off.—Cor. London Tit-Bits.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"German Syrup"

The majority of well-read physicians now believe that Consumption is a germ disease. In other words, instead of being in the constitution itself it is caused by innumerable small creatures living in the lungs having no business there and eating them away as caterpillars do the leaves of trees. The phlegm that is coughed up is those parts of the lungs which have been gnawed off and destroyed. These little bacilli, as the germs are called, are too small to be seen with the naked eye, but they are very much alive just the same, and enter the body in our food, in the air we breathe, and through the pores of the skin. Thence they get into the blood and finally arrive at the lungs where they fasten and increase with frightful rapidity. Then German Syrup comes in, loosens them, kills them, expells them, heals the places they leave, and so nourish and soothe that, in a short time consumptives become germ-proof and well.

A FREE TRIP

TO THE

WORLD'S FAIR

Commencing May 1, 1893.

The History Company of San Francisco, al, (capital stock $500,000) the oldest and largest publishing house on the Pacific Coast, this day announce that they will give Absolutely Free, a ticket to the World's Fair and return, including meals en route one week (7 days) hotel accommodations, six admission tickets to the exposition grounds, two tickets to leading Chicago theaters and such other privileges as may insure a pleasant trip, to deserving, persons who comply with their requirements.

NOTICE

Those desiring to go to the World's Fair and who could not otherwise do so, can address us at once for full particulars. This offer dose not apply to persons of means who are in a position to meet the expenses of such a trip themselves, but to enterprising, intelligent young men and women who can appreciate such an opportunity and make the most of it. Teachers, clergymen, students, farmers, bright sons and daughters, in fact any and all possessing enterprise, energy and character will be eligible.

THE CHANCE OF A LIFETIME.

Every young man or woman who desire to go to Chicago and see the wonders of the greatest exhibition the world has ever known, should address us at once. Such an opportunity is rarely offered and the trip will be the event of a lifetime to those who go. Address
